Alternative offer for lovers of Brda River - one of the most popular kayaking routes in Poland. It covers the most interesting part of the Grand Canal of Brda, from Melof to the aqueduct in Fojutowo, then via Czerska Struga to Brda.

This channel, although it is a hydrotechnical object built by people over a hundred years ago, it allows us to immerge in the nature of Tuchola Forest and serenity of nature. Along the way we will basically not see any villages and in Fojutowo you can visit new tourist complex and unique aqueduct on a national scale. Czerska Struga will lead us back to Brda, straight to its probably most interesting part. Numerous rapids and meanders of the forest section of the river Brda defy the stereotype of a mass and a simple canoe route. Surely here you will experience many adventures and much adrenaline.

Another advantage of the route is signposting and its quite good management. Many campsites and kayaking shelters offer the possibility of resting and regenerating after a day of paddling.
